Dear Valued Customer,

As the company that commercialized the world's first excimer lamp, we take great pride in commemorating the 30th anniversary of this product's inception. Our journey of growth and success has been made possible through the support of our customers. Thank you very much.

Developed in 1993, this breakthrough technology has provided innovative solutions in a variety of industries, serving as a powerful tool for solving a multitude of challenges. For the past three decades, our mission has been to foster strong partnerships with our customers and support innovation and progress in many industries around the world.

At the heart of our achievements lies the trust and support of our customers. We continuously strive to improve the quality and value of our products to meet your evolving demands and requirements, and we also value your feedback and are committed to refining our product offering based on your insights.

Your cooperation is still invaluable to us going forward and we remain committed in our endeavors to meet society's expectations.

We humbly seek your ongoing support in the future.
